Caring is Essential
NATIONAL ASSISTED LIVING WEEK
September 13-19, 2020

The NCAL chose “Caring is Essential” as this years theme, because it is more relevant today than in previous years and truly highlights the extraordinary care that is provided by our essential caregivers in assisted living communities across the country” according to American Health Care Association / National Center for Assisted Living.

Sept. 13-19 — it is encouraged that all assisted living communities around the country offer a variety of events and activities to help celebrate the individuals they serve, as well as to educate the public about this aspect of long-term care. For more information and celebration ideas, go to NALW website.

Thinking of You

Parents as you and your kids lives have been turned upside down — you're having to create new routines and structure, balancing the demands of homeschooling/virtual learning, learning to adjust to working remotely, caring for your families, and still finding the time to disinfect the groceries. Overnight, we've taken on the role as teachers on top of all the other titles you hold, so we applaud you and are keeping you in our thoughts.

Also, did you know that humor lets us shift our focus, giving us a distraction from the events at hand? Click below for some Virtual Learning vs Parents Humor.

Ways to help both you and your kids adjust to this new normal:

- Build a Schedule.
- Model Hard Work and Persistence.Set up a Designated Workspace.
- Familiarize Yourself with the Virtual Learning Platform.
- Build a Relationship with Your Child's Teachers

Goodbye Summer, Hello Fall.
